I extend heartfelt appreciation to the esteemed World Book of Records (WBR) and its devoted members with deep gratitude. In a remarkably brief period, WBR has risen as a guiding light of acknowledgment, showcasing extraordinary accomplishments from around the world with genuineness and style. The introduction of their Overseas Edition of a magazine London Press serves as a concrete demonstration of their dedication to celebrating human potential globally. Echoing the words of Swami Vivekananda, who emphasized that "Expansion is life – Contraction is death," WBR has not only flourished in India but has also made its mark on a worldwide scale. As WBR embarks on its 8th year, I am profoundly grateful to our esteemed patrons and supporters whose guidance and encouragement have propelled us forward. The unwavering commitment and shared vision of the WBR team have been pivotal in our journey thus far. To all who have contributed to WBR's achievements, your trust and collaboration have been indispensable. Let us continue on this journey together, commemorating the exceptional accomplishments of WBR record holders and recipients of the International Excellence Awards 2024. In a world where recognition of remarkable achievements is often overlooked, WBR has emerged as a beacon of light, illuminating the path for individuals to showcase their talents on a global stage. The authenticity and flair with which WBR catalogues and verifies world records have earned it a distinguished reputation in the realm of record-keeping organizations. The Overseas Edition London Press, a publication dedicated to promoting human efficiency and potential, serves as a testament to WBR's commitment to celebrating excellence on an international level. Through this platform, individuals from diverse backgrounds and cultures have the opportunity to gain recognition for their remarkable feats, thus inspiring others to push the boundaries of what is possible. As WBR steps in its 8th year, it is important to acknowledge the invaluable contributions of its patrons, supporters, and dedicated team members. Their collective wisdom, encouragement, and unwavering belief in WBR's mission have been instrumental in shaping the organization's success. Moving forward, WBR remains committed to its core objectives of recognizing and celebrating human achievement. By continuing to provide a platform for individuals to showcase their talents and accomplishments, WBR will undoubtedly inspire future generations to reach for new heights of excellence.

JOURNEY OF SEVEN YEARS ACROSS SEVEN CONTINENTS

Spectrum of Radiating Achievements of World Book of Records

The World Book of Records (WBR) has embarked on a transformative journey over the past seven years, traversing seven continents and leaving a trail of remarkable achievements in its wake. This international organization has become synonymous with the promotion of record-breaking endeavors and the recognition of individuals worldwide for their exceptional contributions to various fields. From listing and certifying world heritage sites to publishing them in the prestigious "London Press" British Magazine, WBR has established itself as a global authority in the realm of achievements and accomplishments. WBR has earned a reputation for trust and reliability, making it a pivotal force in driving societal advancement on a global scale. Under its flagship, a conglomerate of business entities has made a significant impact on the global stage. Brands like Iudex International Law, renowned among international law firms, have achieved notable success in various verticals worldwide. Iudex International Law's association with Alma UK, WBR Limited UK, Alma UK, American Quality Council, and the World Book of Record Foundation India underscore the collaborative spirit driving WBR's success. The establishment of the Indo-UK Intellectuals Forum in 2017 as a core wing of WBR UK has provided a platform for intellectuals to foster global interaction and innovation. Alma UK, guided by its philanthropic philosophy, has been instrumental in promoting social welfare and socio-economic development under the visionary leadership of Alma since 1999. The American Quality Council, a non-profit organization registered in the USA, embodies collective effort in consultation and decision-making. Awards such as the Nobles of Commonwealth Nations Award recognize individuals worldwide for their unparalleled contributions across various domains, including social, educational, and environmental spheres. Instituted by WBR India and Alma UK, accolades like the Bharat Kirtiman Alankaran and the Dadabhai Naoroji International Leadership Award honor unsung heroes for their outstanding contributions to society. The International Excellence Awards, a longstanding tradition of WBR, celebrate individuals and organizations for their exceptional societal impact. The Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar Award, which recognizes outstanding contributions to society, reflects WBR's commitment to uplifting the underprivileged globally. As WBR continues its journey of empowerment and recognition, its legacy of excellence and societal impact only grows stronger with each passing year across continents. Through its dedication to promote record-breaking achievements and honor individuals for their remarkable contributions, WBR stands as a beacon of inspiration and innovation in the global community.

HISTORY OF ENGLAND AND THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT

England's history dates back to prehistoric times, but its documented history begins with the Roman conquest in AD 43. The Romans established the province of Britannia, bringing roads, baths, and cities like Londinium (London). After the Roman withdrawal around AD 410, England entered the Anglo-Saxon period. Various Germanic tribes, including the Angles, Saxons, and Jutes, settled and established several kingdoms. This period was marked by the development of distinct Anglo-Saxon culture and language. The most transformative event of early medieval England was the Norman Conquest in 1066. William the Conqueror, Duke of Normandy, defeated King Harold II at the Battle of Hastings and became king. This led to significant changes in land ownership, governance, and societal structure. The Normans introduced feudalism, where the king granted land to his nobles in exchange for military service. The Domesday Book, a great survey completed in 1086, detailed landholdings and resources across the kingdom. The Plantagenet dynasty began with Henry II in 1154. Henry II's reign marked the beginning of significant legal reforms, including the development of common law and the establishment of royal courts. The Magna Carta, signed by King John in 1215, was a pivotal document that limited royal power and laid the foundation for constitutional governance. It established the principle that the king was subject to the law and granted certain rights to his subjects. The English Parliament traces its origins to the early medieval period. During the reign of Henry III (1216-1272), a group of nobles and clergy advised the king, forming the Great Council. Simon de Montfort's Parliament in 1265 included not only nobles and clergy but also commoners, representing a significant step towards a more representative institution. Edward I's Model Parliament of 1295 further formalized this by including representatives from each county and borough, establishing the two-house system of Lords and Commons. The Tudor period, beginning with Henry VII in 1485, was a time of significant change. Henry VIII's reign saw the English Reformation, which resulted in the Church of England breaking away from the Roman Catholic Church. This was motivated partly by Henry's desire to annul his marriage to Catherine of Aragon and partly by political and financial factors. The Reformation Parliament (1529-1536) played a crucial role, passing legislation that established the monarch as the Supreme Head of the Church of England. Elizabeth I's reign (1558-1603) was marked by relative stability, flourishing arts, and exploration. The defeat of the Spanish Armada in 1588 established England as a formidable naval power. The Elizabethan era also saw the continued development of parliamentary power, though the queen maintained strong control over her government. The Stuart dynasty began with James I in 1603. Tensions between the monarchy and Parliament grew over issues of authority, religion, and finances. Charles I's reign (1625-1649) was particularly tumultuous, leading to the English Civil War (1642-1651). The war was fought between the Royalists (supporters of the king) and the Parliamentarians. The conflict resulted in the execution of Charles I in 1649 and the establishment of the Commonwealth under Oliver Cromwell. The monarchy was restored in 1660 with Charles II. His reign saw the re-establishment of the Church of England and the development of political parties, notably the Whigs and Tories. James II's Catholicism and attempts to expand royal power led to his ousting in the Glorious Revolution of 1688. William III and Mary II ascended the throne, accepting the Bill of Rights in 1689, which limited royal power and affirmed Parliament's authority. The early 18th century saw the accession of the Hanoverian dynasty, beginning with George I in 1714. George I's limited English and frequent absences led to the rise of the office of Prime Minister, with Sir Robert Walpole considered the first de facto Prime Minister. The period saw the further development of the constitutional monarchy, with Parliament gaining more power relative to the crown. The Industrial Revolution (late 18th to early 19th century) transformed England economically and socially. Rapid industrialization led to urbanization, changing the demographic and political landscape. The need for political reform became evident, leading to the passage of the Reform Act of 1832. This act redistributed parliamentary seats, extended the franchise to more men, and marked the beginning of a series of reforms that would expand democratic representation. The Victorian era (1837-1901) was a period of significant progress and change. Queen Victoria's long reign saw the expansion of the British Empire and continued industrial growth. Parliamentary reforms continued, with the Second Reform Act of 1867 and the Third Reform Act of 1884 further extending the franchise. The Ballot Act of 1872 introduced the secret ballot, reducing electoral corruption. The early 20th century was dominated by the two World Wars. World War I (1914-1918) had a profound impact, leading to significant social and political changes. The Representation of the People Act 1918 granted the vote to all men over 21 and women over 30, with full equality achieved in 1928. World War II (1939-1945) further altered British society and politics. The post-war consensus led to the establishment of the welfare state, including the National Health Service (NHS) in 1948. The Labour Party, led by Clement Attlee, implemented these changes, reflecting a shift towards greater government intervention in the economy and social services. The latter half of the 20th century saw decolonization and the decline of the British Empire. Domestically, the United Kingdom experienced significant constitutional changes. The creation of the National Assembly for Wales and the Scottish Parliament in 1999 marked important steps in devolution, granting these nations greater control over their domestic affairs. The early 21st century has continued to see significant political developments. The question of Britain's relationship with the European Union (EU) culminated in the Brexit referendum of 2016, where the majority voted to leave the EU. The process of leaving the EU has dominated British politics, with the final departure occurring in January 2020.

Recent years have also seen debates over the future of the union, particularly with increasing calls for Scottish independence and concerns over Northern Ireland's status post-Brexit. The Conservative Party has been the dominant political force, but British politics remain highly dynamic. Throughout its history, the British Parliament has evolved from a feudal assembly into a sophisticated democratic institution. Originally an advisory council to the monarch, it developed into a bicameral legislature with the House of Commons and the House of Lords. The balance of power shifted over centuries, with significant milestones marking this transformation. The Glorious Revolution and the Bill of Rights in 1689 were pivotal, establishing parliamentary sovereignty. The 19th and 20th centuries saw further democratization, with successive Reform Acts expanding the electorate and making the House of Commons more representative. The Parliament Acts of 1911 and 1949 reduced the power of the House of Lords, ensuring the supremacy of the elected House of Commons. England's history is rich and complex, characterized by periods of conquest, conflict, and significant societal changes. The development of the British Parliament reflects this dynamic history, evolving from a medieval council into one of the world's oldest and most influential democratic institutions. The interplay between the monarchy and Parliament, alongside broader social and economic transformations, has shaped modern Britain. Today, the British Parliament stands as a testament to centuries of political development, embodying principles of democracy and the rule of law.

WILHELM JEZLER

Head of WBR European Initiatives
Zürich, Switzerland

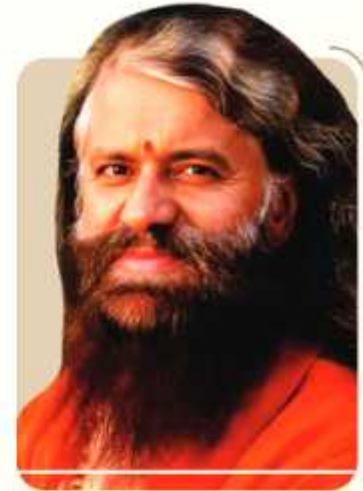

TRULY LEARN AND MOVE FORWARD IS FUEL TO POWER OF ENTREPRENEURIAL JOURNEY

His business philosophy has been different in few aspects as some general conditions can be crucial to competitiveness in developing countries, and improving them through corporate philanthropy.

Wilhelm Jezler from Zürich, Switzerland might be synonymous with entrepreneurial success. He has been in business for a long time and did taste many successes and glitches that made him strong enough to cope up with tolerance and description power. He became a social activist and philanthropist to serve humanity through his own personal capacity. Owing to his rich experience and knowledge, he had an opportunity to have interaction and place of interest at World Book of Record to pursue his social work. He became (Head of WBR European initiative). Under the pioneering guidance of Wilhelm Jezler to motivate and inspire people with a pledge to be committed to save and educate others to stay safe in the Covid-19 pandemic period. This global campaign of the pledge has covered people and organizations of 70 countries. As he says that your background doesn't need to define your future, as these inspiring stories show. Some of the people profiled in this article were adopted or born into poverty, or raised by single parents, or caught shoplifting when they were teenagers. And yet none of them let these supposed "disadvantages" hold them back in later life. Successful entrepreneurs understood this well: the only way to truly learn and move forward is through action. The lack of wealth, in many cases, has shown to be a motivator for those who desire to build a better future. So don't let your own life's setup or setbacks hold you down. Use them as fuel to power you forward on your own entrepreneurial journey, too. His experiences have led him to develop a philosophical approach to life. "I believe life is a series of near-misses," he once said in a speech, as a lot of what we ascribe to luck is not luck at all. It's seizing the day and accepting responsibility for your future. It's seeing what other people don't see and pursuing that vision. His business philosophy has been different in few aspects as some general conditions can be crucial to competitiveness in developing countries, and improving them through corporate philanthropy can bring enormous social gains to the world's poorest nations. But often just as decisive, if not more, are aspects of context that are specific to a particular cluster—a geographic concentration of interconnected companies, suppliers, related industries, and specialized institutions in a particular field, such as high-performance cars in Germany or software in India. Clusters arise through the combined influence of all four elements of context. They are often prominent features of a region's economic landscape, and building them is essential to its development, allowing constituent firms to be more productive, making innovation easier, and fostering the formation of new businesses. That does not mean that every corporate expenditure will bring a social benefit or that every social benefit will improve competitiveness. Most corporate expenditures produce benefits only for the business, and charitable contributions unrelated to the business generate only social benefits. It is only where corporate expenditures produce simultaneous social and economic gains that corporate philanthropy and shareholder interests converge, as illustrated in the exhibit "A Convergence of Interests." The highlighted area shows where corporate philanthropy has an important influence on a company's competitive context. It is here that philanthropy is truly strategic. He says that Philanthropic initiatives can also improve the local quality of life, which benefits all citizens but is increasingly necessary to attract mobile employees with specialized talents.

COSMOPOLITAN SPIRITUAL VISIONARY WITH A PASSION OF WELFARE TO SERVE HUMANITY

Worldwide spiritual leader and mesmeric personality, H.H. Pujya Swami Chidanand Saraswatiji of Rishikesh, Uttarakhand India is one of mesmeric personalities in the global scenario. HER LEADERSHIP AND VISION FOR WOMAN EMPOWERMENT GALVANIZE THE CAUSE OF HUMANITY

POONAM JEZLER

Zürich
Switzerland

Ms. Poonam Jezler from Zürich, Germany is one of the prominent personalities of the existing world scenario. She was educated in India and then shifted to Germany to shape up her career with a staunch confidence. She is deeply involved in social work in Zürich and India simultaneously for the betterment of humanity cause. According to her thinking the social work profession developed in the 19th century, with some of its roots in voluntary philanthropy and in grassroots organizing. However, responses to social needs had existed long before then, primarily from public almshouses, private charities and religious organizations. The effects of the Industrial Revolution and of the Great Depression placed pressure on social work to become a more defined discipline as social workers responded to the child welfare concerns related to widespread poverty and reliance on child labor in industrial settings. She strongly stresses that Information technology is vital in social work; it transforms the documentation part of the work into electronic media.

PROMOTING SOCIAL WELFARE, WOMAN EMPOWERMENT, CULTURAL HERITAGE AND EDUCATIONAL CAUSES

Maharaj Kumar Sahib Dr. Lakshyaraj Singh Ji Mewar of Udaipur: A Legacy of Service and Philanthropy Scion of the illustrious Mewar dynasty dating back to 566 CE, exemplifies a modern-day leader dedicated to upholding tradition while embracing progressive change. His multifaceted roles as a philanthropist, educationist, sports patron, business leader, TED speaker, and World Records holder reflect his commitment to serving humanity and preserving cultural heritage. From a young age, Maharaj Kumar Sahib Dr. Lakshyaraj Singh Ji Mewar has been deeply involved in public service, championing causes ranging from heritage conservation to education and tourism development. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Maharaj Kumar Sahib Dr. Lakshyaraj Singh Ji Mewar led numerous initiatives to aid vulnerable communities. He organized the distribution of essential supplies such as food grains, sanitizers, and masks to rural areas surrounding Udaipur, benefiting daily wage workers and stray animals alike. Moreover, Maharaj Kumar Sahib Dr. Lakshyaraj Singh Ji Mewar's reverence for the Indian Armed Forces is evident through his donation of an ambulance to the Indian Army stationed at Eklingji Cantonment, Udaipur, during the peak of the pandemic. This gesture reflects his profound respect and support for those serving the nation. The House of Mewar, under his stewardship, continues its legacy of supporting war widows and retired members of the Army and Police force through the Maharana of Mewar Charitable Foundation.

EPITOME OF HARD WORK, PIONEERING VISION AND SCRIPT OF SUCCESS

She is one of the most inspiring and influential women of Nepal who was the past president of FNCCI and she is the one who broke the ceiling that women can also lead the organization in a very effective model. Belonging from a non-business family and now recognised as the top business leader and entrepreneur of Nepal, Ms. Bhawani Rana was the only woman among the eight office-bearers in FNCCI. She has had many success stories to tell. Growing up in a semi-political family, Ms. Rana learnt to lead the industrial sector and became the president of FNCCI. Although she was born in Kathmandu in a non-business Mishra family, in which her parents might never have imagined their junior daughter, Ms. Bhawani Rana, would make a business leader. She joined FNCCI in 2007 as a member and continued to work her way up in the leadership ladder. Embellished with outstanding awards and recognitions, including the National Award from the President of Nepal on the occasion of Nepal Republic Day – May 28, 2016; National Award as 'Outstanding Entrepreneur Contribution' (Tourism Sector) from Ministry of Industry in March 2009; Medal from Home Ministry in 2005 for serving the flood victims of mid-west Nepal; and Recognition Awards from various national organizations and documented as one of the "Women Human Rights Defenders" in 2006.

STRENGTHENING THE CULTURAL RELATIONS ACROSS THE WORLD THROUGH MUSIC AND BOLLYWOOD SONGS

Svetlana Agarwal is one of the dynamic personalities in promoting music and Bollywood songs in the international scenario. She is a bright and amazingly talented performer who sings real Indian songs. Ideal appearance and bewitching voice will not leave anyone indifferent. She is an international singer, the only performer of Indian songs in Belarus. She was a recipient of the World Book of Records of London award in the category "Outstanding World Performers" for her contribution to the development of cultural relations between India and Belarus through Hindi songs. She harmoniously weaves Indian instruments into her Belarusian and Russian songs, thereby strengthening the cultural relations of both countries. Her creative portfolio includes collaborations with the ensembles "Pesnyary", "Syabry", Nadezhda Mikulich (ex-Verasy), the Indian king of disco music Bappi Lahiri and other Belarusian and foreign pop artists. As a schoolgirl, Svetlana studied in a vocal and instrumental ensemble, later was a soloist in a choir, and participated in KVN, which, by the way, she also organized herself. It was during her school years that Svetlana succumbed to the influence of the then popular Indian films and began to sing in Hindi herself.

HER PIONEERING WORK HAS SIGNIFICANT IMPLICATIONS FOR BOTH ACADEMIC RESEARCH AND CULTURAL UNDERSTANDING

Prominent Scholar Dr. Tharupeedikayil Seethy Shailajais is one of mesmeric personalities in the global scenario. She has been honoured by World Book of Records for her extraordinary accomplishment in exploring the Multifaceted Representation of the Universe, Anatomy, and Energy Systems through Traditional Drum- Edakka. She has developed the first-ever theoretical framework that delves into the profound significance of the Edakka, a traditional drum from Kerala, India. Her research, titled "Exploring the Universal Essence within the Microcosm: Unveiling the Sacred Symbol and Its Multifaceted Representation of Universe, Anatomy, and Energy System," posits that the Edakka is a microcosmic symbol embodying universal principles. Dr. Shailaja's innovative theory marks a significant milestone in the interdisciplinary study of cultural artifacts, suggesting that the Edakka, traditionally known for its musical applications, holds deeper symbolic meanings that connect to the cosmos, human anatomy, and energy systems. Dr. Shailaja's pioneering work has significant implications for both academic research and cultural understanding. By highlighting Edakka's symbolic dimensions, she bridges the gap between traditional cultural practices and modern scientific inquiry. Her theory encourages a holistic view of cultural artifacts, acknowledging their potential to convey complex knowledge systems. This research not only enhances the appreciation of the Edakka within its cultural context but also invites further interdisciplinary studies on other traditional instruments and artifacts.

HUMANITARIAN GAURAV LASTING IMPACT IN VARIOUS SPHERES

IAS Pawan Arora, the former Commissioner of the Rajasthan Housing Board, has made history by selling a record 13,583 commercial and residential projects through e-bid submissions in just three years. Despite the department's financial struggles, Arora's strategic initiatives and dedication led to this unprecedented achievement. Under Arora's leadership, the Rajasthan Housing Board adopted e-bid submissions for property sales, streamlining processes and enhancing transparency. This digital approach expedited the sales process, increased participation and competition among bidders, and resulted in a staggering 13,583 projects sold. After opting for Voluntary Retirement Scheme (VRS), Arora has taken on the roles of CEO and Editor at First India News and First India newspaper. With his extensive experience in public administration and policy implementation, he is expected to bring a fresh perspective and enhance the editorial depth and operational efficiency of the media outlets. Arora's transition to the media sector marks a significant shift from his bureaucratic tenure. As he steps into the media world, the industry eagerly awaits the innovations and leadership he will bring to First India News and First India newspaper.

KARAMUNIKO DIAMOND: A DIVINE TREASURE IN SURAT

KANUBHAI ASODARIYA

Founder
Kaaram Diamond
Surat, India

In the heart of Surat, a mesmerizing marvel draws the attention of diamond enthusiasts and spiritual seekers alike. A natural diamond weighing an impressive 182.3 carats and 36.5 grams, adorned with the imagery of Lord Ganesh, has found its home in the museum of Kanubhai Asodariya, a renowned diamond merchant. This extraordinary gem, claimed to surpass even the legendary Kohinoor in size. Revered by Kanubhai's family, this diamond becomes the focal point of worship during the Ganesh Chaturthi festival, when it is brought out from its secure display for annual rituals before being returned to the museum. Kanubhai's treasure has garnered international recognition. "The Indian Diamond Institute and the World Book of Records in London have certified it as a unique diamond, untouched by laboratory processes or polishing. It was taken out from the mine in its natural form," Kanubhai proudly stated. Beyond the KaramUnIKO Diamond, the museum boasts other rare and naturally formed Ganpati idols crafted from crystal and pearls. A striking seven-foot Ganesh idol also graces the museum, adding to its spiritual ambiance. Kanubhai Asodariya's museum is not just a display of wealth but a testament to the divine connection and positive energy he believes in, making it a must-visit for those who appreciate the intersection of nature's wonders and spiritual reverence.

FROM ADVERSITY TO TRIUMPH : THE INSPIRING JOURNEY OF PRATHAM BHALLA

As we are reminded that life is full of ups and downs. But it's how we respond to challenges that defines us. Pratham Bhalla's story is a testament to resilience, determination, and the power of never giving up. Born on January 1, 1989, Pratham completed his education from St. Paul's H.S. School, Ajmer, with a science and math stream. He then pursued B. Com from Jaipur's Rajasthan University and later earned an MBA from SKIT, Jaipur. Pratham's professional journey began in 2010 as a sales executive at Skoda Automobiles. However, his entrepreneurial spirit soon took over, and in 2014, he ventured into the garment business in Jaipur. Despite his hard work and dedication, the COVID-19 pandemic forced him to shut down his business in 2020. But Pratham refused to let adversity define him. In the same year, he was selected as the Vice President of the World Book of Records, London for Rajasthan, a prestigious honor that recognizes excellence and achievement. Through his journey, Pratham has demonstrated that success is not final and failure is not fatal. It's the courage to continue that counts. His story serves as a reminder that even in the darkest moments, there is always hope for a brighter tomorrow. Today, Pratham continues to inspire others with his leadership and vision, leaving a lasting impact on the world around him. His determination and perseverance are a beacon of inspiration, reminding us that with hard work and resilience, we can overcome even the most daunting challenges. Let Pratham's story be a reminder that every setback is an opportunity for a comeback, and every failure is a stepping stone to success.

CHILD PRODIGY MISS LAYA CULLI, LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM GETS ETCHED BY WORLD BOOK OF RECORDS FOR ASSEMBLING WORLD MAP PUZZLE

Miss Laya Culli D/o Mr. Gopala Krishna Culli, Pinner, London, United Kingdom is one of mesmeric children in the global scenario. She has been included by World Book of Records for assembling a world map puzzle by arranging 65 countries in 05 minutes and 54 seconds on 11 April 2023 at the age of 04 years 09 months and 12 days. Father of Miss Laya Culli, Mr. Gopala Krishna says that at birth, the average baby's brain is about a quarter of the size of the average adult brain. Incredibly, it doubles in size in the first year. It keeps growing to about 80% of adult size by age 3 and 90% – nearly full grown – by age 5. The brain is the command center of the human body. Starting from birth, children develop brain connections through their everyday experiences. They're built through positive interactions with their parents and caregivers and by using their senses to interact with the world. A young child's daily experiences determine which brain connections develop and which will last for a lifetime. The amount and quality of care, stimulation and interaction they receive in their early years makes all the difference. Caring, Responsive Relationships are vital to all round development of a child. Her parents pointed out that a child's relationships with the adults in their life are the most important influences on their brain development. Loving relationships with responsive, dependable adults are essential to a child's healthy development. These relationships begin at home, with parents and family, but also include child care providers, teachers and other members of the community.
